What is scoping?

Scoping is the first step in the EIS process. The purpose of scoping is to seek input from the public, interest groups, agencies and affected tribes on the actions, alternatives and environmental impacts proposed to be discussed in the EIS. The scoping process is also intended to eliminate detailed study of those issues that are not significant or have been covered by prior environmental review.

To learn more about the State of Washington's State Environmental Policy Act (SEPA) and the scoping process visit the Department of Ecology's SEPA website FAQs at: <http://www.ecy.wa.gov/programs/sea/sepa/faq.htm>
