

Biking along the waterfront

Seawall construction continues from Virginia Street to Yesler Way. While Alaskan Way remains accessible for bicyclists during this phase of construction, there are alternative bike routes. See map on Page 2.

Alternative bike routes include:

Northbound (South Washington to Broad streets)

- Bicyclists going northbound can access Western Avenue for a dedicated bike facility.
- To access Western Avenue from South Washington Street, turn right onto Yesler Way and left onto Western Avenue.
- Construction in front of Pike Place Market has temporarily closed the dedicated bike facility. Please dismount and walk your bikes on the pedestrian sidewalk.
- To access Alaskan Way north of Virginia Street take Wall Street south.

Southbound (Broad to South Washington streets)

- Cyclists going southbound can access Elliott Avenue to Western Avenue for a dedicated bike facility.
- To access Western Avenue from Elliott Avenue follow the dedicated bike facility as the two intersect at Lenora Street.
- Construction in front of Pike Place Market has temporarily closed the dedicated bike facility. Please dismount and walk your bikes on the pedestrian sidewalk.
- To access Elliott Avenue from Alaskan Way take Wall Street north.

Have a question? Let us know.

24-hour hotline: 206.618.8584
seawall@waterfrontseattle.org
waterfrontseattle.org/seawall

Stay up to date! Sign up for our weekly email updates:

waterfrontseattle.org/contact-us

See reverse for map

Alternative Bike Route Map

Alternative bike routes to Alaskan Way run along Western and Elliott avenues.

Construction in front of Pike Place Market has temporarily closed the dedicated bike facility. Please dismount and walk your bikes on the pedestrian sidewalk.

To access Alaskan Way north of Virginia Street, take Wall Street south. To access Elliott Avenue from Alaskan Way, take Wall Street north.

